Scrap drives were an important part of the war effort. It was one of the few ways that every man, woman, and child on the home front could aid in the war effort. Scrap drives were held for rubber, metal, paper, nylon, and other materials in short supply.

“Winchester school boys to aid in collection of salvage materials, aiding housekeepers in the collection of scrap iron, rubber, paper, and any metals that may be on hand for the Salvage for Victory campaign”

- Lexington Leader, May 6, 1942

“A silk stocking salvage campaign to be held by the Lexington Piolet Club will last through the end of the war. Fayette County's goal is 100 pounds of silk per month. Receptacles places in various stores and offices downtown for convenience. Silk is needed by the government in the manufacture of power bags and other fighting paraphernalia.”
